The American Diplomatic Service

The proposed substitution of General McClellan for Mr Adams in the American embassy in London is another striking illustration of the necessity for such a reform in the civil service as will make training experience and ability of some value in it. We do not of course expect that it will strike Congress in this light or that the Senate if it reject him altogether will reject him on the ground of unfitness for this particular duty. The proximate cause of his rejection will be and rightly enough his political antecedents. As far as character goes we think he is an unobjectionable man to say the least as Mr Johnson is at all likely to nominate for the place but as regards experience and training he is singularly in fact fatally unfit for it considering the delicacy of the relations of this country with England and the number of the fresh complications which may any day arise. General McClellan, during his short public career, gave evidence of a great many good qualities, but judgement and acumen and tact and clear headedness and a proper sense of the limits of his own powers were not among the number. The political opinions which he produced while commander in chief, were unquestionably not of his own manufacture. Whether good or bad, they were probably supplied by the "Society for the Diffusion of Political Information" or rather by the gentlemen who afterwards organized the illustrious body, and it would probably be difficult to find in any public man's history a more striking proof of incapacity for diplomatic functions than the Harrison's Landing letter. Whatever may be thought of the political doctrines propounded in that letter few will deny that the writing of it by a general on the morrow of a bloody repulse, to the political chief of the government he served, proved a degree of obtuseness on the part of the author for which there are few if any parallels to be found in military history.

The real value of the performance as an indication of character was concealed from the public by the excitement of the time and by the noisy efforts which the Democrats were then making to use the General against the Government. But if we imagine Sir John Moore to have survived Corunna and passed the evening of the battle while his troops were stealing on board ship, in writing a long letter to the Prince Regent, giving him advice on the Catholic question and parliamentary reform, we shall have a clearer notion of the bearing which the letter has on General McClellan's claims to be entrusted with high diplomatic functions.

We know very well that there is a popular notion that the real use of an embassador, and especially an American embassador, is to transmit messages from his own Government to that to which he is accredited these messages containing not the secretly formed opinions of a man or clique, but the expression of the national will formed by the press and the platform and carrying its motives on its face and needing nothing in the transmission but clear statement and prompt delivery. In this theory of embassadorial functions character of mind of course count for very little and the part played by the minister in society is treated as purely ornamental—of no service to anybody but rich people who want to see the best foreign circles, but who would be much better at home keeping a store or raising cranberries. This view has long been held by what we call the "Old War Horse" school of politicians, and it is a view which naturally recommends itself strongly to the popular mind, particularly in the West, where social life and social influences play a comparatively small part in the shaping of men's opinions or the regulation of their conduct.

It is surprising, therefore, that this school should be opposed to our having any diplomatic service at all, believing the post-office and the telegraph to furnish all the needful facilities for such communications as we need to make to the governments of foreign nations, or if we must have one should consider the various posts in it as simply a useful means of rewarding party services at home to be bestowed without the least reference to the special fitness of the appointee for the place he was to fill. Of course from this point of view, McCracken would fill the Vienna mission as well as if not better than Motley, as he would have nothing to do but watch the machinations of the Austrian aristocracy against American liberty and carry Mr Seward's dispatches round to the Austrian foreign office. If you talk to an Old War horse of the personal influence of an embassador, of what he may do by his personal demeanor, by his character, his culture, and his private conversation to make his country respected and to carry out the foreign policy of his Government he thinks either that you are a fool or that you take him for one. The only means of exerting influence that he knows of are the "editorial" and the speech or lyceum lecture. And when you tell him that in Europe great wars are often avoided and great alliances cemented and the sum of human happiness increased by mere talking over a dinner or tea table by an embassador merely inspiring those with whom he comes in contact with confidence in his sincerity his integrity his learning, in his broad mindedness and acuteness he thinks you are a besotted votary of "fashion." —The Nation

THE ARREST OF GEORGE F TRAIN.—The Government's Explanation of the Affair

In the sitting of the House of Commons February 17th on the occasion of the second reading of the bill renewing the suspension of the habeas corpus in Ireland the Earl of Mayo made a statement in regard to the arrest of Mr Train. He said Mr Train arrived in Ireland from America in one of the mail packets and the police who had strict orders to watch all the arrivals from that quarter, searched his baggage in the discharge of their duty and found among his papers a considerable number of printed documents consisting principally of speeches which he had made in America [a laugh] and which were evidently of a very strong Fenian tendency.

Those speeches it appeared were delivered at Fenian meetings and as far as he could judge for he did not read them all [a laugh] they expressed very great sympathy with the Fenian movement. Proceeding on the general orders to which he had referred and without having received any instructions beyond them the police therefore arrested Mr Train. In doing so he believed they acted entirely in conformity with their duty and were perfectly justified in adopting the course they took. The arrest was made late on Friday evening and on the following day one of the police officers went up to Dublin and had an interview with several members of the Government to whom the circumstances of the case were explained. The result was that an order was sent down to Cork to release Mr Train on his making a statement to the effect that he had not come to Ireland to promote the objects of Fenianism. That statement was made and the next day he was released from custody.

The Revolution credits Theodore Tilton with a brilliant remark. Lately he was in Washington talking with a member who is near sighted. The member mounted his eye glasses and scanned the galleries. Member could not see well. Member said "Mr Tilton, what would you do if you could not distinguish your friend in the gallery?" Said T. "Then sir I would try to distinguish myself in the floor of the House." The rejoinder was good.

Who Voted to Build the Pacific Railroad

We learn that Smith, in his speech at Oregon City yesterday (Tuesday) claimed the Pacific Railroad as a "Democratic measure." It is clear that Smith has started out in the canvass on the supposition that he can carry his points wholly by misrepresentation and falsehood. For the benefit of such as may desire to know the truth in this matter, (of whom Mr Smith is clearly not one) we publish the yeas and nays when the bill was put on its passage in the House

Yeas—Aldrich Allen, Alley, Arnold, Ashley Beaman, W G Brown Baldie Bingham F P Blair Blake, Campbell Clements Colfax, Corning Covode, Cutler, Davis Delaplaine Duell Dunlap Edgerton, Eliot, Ely, Fenton, Fessenden, Fisher, Franchot, Frank, Gooch, Goodwin Granger, Gurley, Haight, Hall, Hooper, Horton Hutchins Julian, Kelley, F. The names of only two Democrats so far as we are able to discover, are recorded among the ayes. These are Messrs Allen and Perry. Isn't it clear that the Pacific Railroad is a "Democratic measure?"

A PLAIN ANSWER.—Among the people who came to market yesterday afternoon was a citizen of West Jersey. He brought a stock of eggs and butter. In a big coop, in the rearmost part of his wagon, he had a splendid peacock whose tail spread out, beautiful even to gorgeousness, like the trail of a lady's dress. An Irishman passing observed the splendid plumage of the bird, and asked its price.

"Thee can have it for fifteen dollars," was the reply of the owner, whose garb indicated him as a member of the Society of Friends.

"That's a good price," was the interrogative remark of the Celt, as he smoothed the ample tail of the feathered biped.

"There are plenty of people who will give that for him," was the placid and very true rejoinder.

The Celt surveyed the bird, admired his proportions but still endeavored to cheapen him. "Mister," said he at last to the grave gentleman who held the bird for sale—"Mister, people say that these birds have a very bad voice."

"I have nothing to say about their voices," was the quiet reply. "If thee wants the fowl thee can take it if thee doesn't its voice doesn't make any matter to thee."

"But," said the Celt, "don't them birds holler like the devil?"

"Friend," was the placid reply, "thee probably in that respect has an advantage over me. Thee evidently has an acquaintance that I have not. If thee thinks that the scream of his bird is like to that of thy friend, whom thee has just named I, in my ignorance, will not presume to contradict thee."

The next minute the Celt was in an opposite stall in the market purchasing a ten cent bunch of carrots. He bought no peacock on that day.

NOVEL STATISTICS.—Here goes for a few facts. The chance of being killed on a British railway is one in eight millions—but you can always buy an insurance ticket. In Java, 140 persons are eaten every year by tigers and about fifty by crocodiles. A rather larger number are killed in London by cabs and omnibuses. Mr Crawshay an iron master in Wales, died recently leaving his youngest son by will £7,000 000, say $35 000 000. A Quaker in Ireland an excellent landlord and large manufacturer, owns fourteen townships. The number of persons of the upper and middle classes in the United Kingdom with independent incomes is said to be 2 759 000, dependent persons of the same classes, 3 859 000, the manual labor classes are about 23 000 000. The total annual income of all the people of the United Kingdom is estimated at £821,379,000, or £47,000 000 more than the whole national debt. This would be about £25 12s say $128 a year for each person. That is what we should have over here if it were fairly divided. As it is one man gets the interest of several millions, great numbers have incomes of from five to a hundred thousand pounds a year a much larger number from one to five thousand. When all these are deducted you come down to a great mass of people who live, somehow, on from six to ten pounds a year. Paupers are kept for about six pounds agricultural laborers about the same. The thieves cost more and live better. This applies especially to England. In Ireland the scale of wages and subsistence is about a third lower.—London Correspondence of the N Y Times

A BUSY MAN.—The busiest man in Washington is Judge Black, James Buchanan's Attorney General. The whole task of writing vetoes against Congress and arguing for rebels in the Supreme Court seems to be devolved upon him, and he hugely enjoys "the labor of love." Nobody denies that he was the architect of the annual message, the attack upon Stanton, and the foolish and insulting communication, signed Andrew Johnson, calling Hancock the second Washington. The other jobs upon which he is now engaged are a veto against the bill fixing the quorum of the Supreme Court another against the reconstruction law, and another against the reduction of the number of major generals. A fine historical point might be made by taking this man's feelings after he had contributed his best energies to the cause of secession, and while Andrew Johnson was leading the Union column in Tennessee and particularly on the celebrated 4th of March 1865 and placing them in juxtaposition with his present relation to the executive judicial and legislative departments of the Government. One thing is sure. If he brought James Buchanan to grief and shame, and aided to plunge the country into civil war, he will be equally successful in hastening the catastrophe to Andrew Johnson. The comparison will fail in this however—he will not succeed in creating another rebellion.—Phila Press

The Omaha (Nebraska) Republican says of the recent brilliant Republican triumph in that city

This magnificent victory is the most complete one ever gained in Nebraska. The Copperhead party is routed horse foot and dragoons. Disloyalty has been thoroughly squelched in the empire city of the State. The staunch patriots of Omaha have vindicated themselves and the fair fame of the city. The ring which has so long dominated in Omaha is wiped out forever. All good men feel jubilant, feel glorious. The spell is broken and next fall the Republicans of Omaha will sweep the city of Omaha and Douglas county by a thousand majority

LAGER WILL INTOXICATE.—The question of whether or not lager will intoxicate has been again judicially determined. The trial was had at Poughkeepsie. Several witnesses were sworn. Five of them testified that they were in the habit of drinking from forty to eighty glasses a day and were never drunk. One stated that a few days ago he and thirteen other "church members" drank at one sitting twenty eight glasses, and "gave no signs of being drunk." But despite of all this strong testimony the jury found a verdict legally establishing the fact that lager will intoxicate

An exchange says a proposition has been presented to Congress by a member from Ohio to sell the right to manufacture liquor for the United States for $[illegible] 000 000. If that can be done and good security given for the payment of this sum weekly to the Government it is the best move made yet. Let them cheat and defraud each other. They know the boys who are cheating the Government and will soon ferret them out. It will be then, "dog eat dog."

Branch Railroad

The action which was taken by our citizens some time ago in the matter of preparing a report on the various proposed railroads and branch lines in which this State has an interest, has elicited the following letter from the President of the Union Pacific road

NEW YORK, March 3, 1868.

Messrs W W Chapman, A P Dennison and F D Shattuck

Gents—Your communication with report of proceeding of the people of the City of Portland, Oregon on the subject of a branch railroad from the Union Pacific Railroad to the Pacific [illegible], through your place is received

We have looked with great interest to a connection with Oregon through your branch road. I will submit your report and resolutions to our Board of Directors at their next meeting, and a committee will undoubtedly be appointed to confer with you and report upon the subject

Very respectfully yours,
OLIVER AMES.

WELL SAID.—There is no man so degraded but is deserving of a little pity, and we feel sure that many who favor the impeachment of Johnson regard his situation with anything but pleasure. He had no less a chance than Lincoln to inscribe his name high above the common roll of mortals. There are those who have merit but never an opportunity to disclose it, and die in obscurity. There are those also who have no merit, and unfortunate opportunity discloses the fact, and they die in disgrace. Of the latter we may class Andrew Johnson. But we think the Nation strikes the key note in his case in the following:

It is a delicate thing to say, but, if said at all, must be said now. Mr Johnson's troubles to himself and the nation have resulted mainly from the fact that he has owed all his political successes to his zeal and courage. In everything else he has been wanting. He is ignorant, hot-headed impetuous indiscreet, loose tongued. He has no tact, no perception, is no judge of character. Had he been the reverse of all this, his differences with Congress on the matter of reconstruction would not have brought him to his present position. He might have secured a large amount of popular support, and certainly [illegible] have retained the popular respect, and would have quitted the office at the end of his term, without the reputation of having degraded it.

The opinion of the New York Ledger on the Grant Johnson correspondence is undoubtedly as unbiased and free of partisan feelings as that of any in the country and that able and independent sheet says of it

"About the silliest piece of business we have ever heard of was the request that President Johnson made of Gen Grant to disobey the Senate and that he (Johnson) would stand the fine and imprisonment. We thought that everybody knew that justice does not accept substitutes in such matters, but makes the violator of her laws personally serve out the penalty. If President Johnson wants to have a law violated why doesn't he violate it himself? General Grant is too shrewd, too wise, and too good a man to be caught in such a trap."

A letter dropped into an Indiana post office was addressed "Mr Coldfacts, the Senator of Congress."

A Reminder for a Candid Man

We propose to examine the statement made by Rev. Chadband Smith in his speech at Oro Fino Hall declaring that the Democratic party never attempted to thwart the Government during the war; that it favored the suppression of the rebellion, and the punishment of traitors. The materials are ample for this investigation. We shall first notice some of the former speeches of Mr Smith on this subject. In May 1862 he made a speech at Salem in which he denounced the war policy, and advised that the claims of the seceded States be conceded to them. His doctrine was that peace was paramount to every other consideration and was worth any sacrifice. Just prior to the Presidential election of 1864 he made a speech at the Willamette Theatre in this city in which he endorsed the Chicago platform which demanded that the war should be stopped. The subject of his speech was "peace," and he denounced with all the bitter language he could command the policy of prosecuting the war. Great numbers of our citizens who heard this speech at the Willamette Theatre in denunciation of the war policy of the Union party heard its author on Monday last at Oro Fino Hall declaring that his party did not oppose, but aided with all their power the suppression of the rebellion. In April 1866 he made a speech at Jefferson, Marion county, in which he told his fellow Democrats that when the war broke out he had warned them not to go into it or give it their support; that the consequences would be disastrous, and now they beheld the truth of his predictions. The fact that on the occasions mentioned he took this position and made these statements he dares not deny. It can be substantiated by hundreds of affidavits and even Democrats of candor and honesty will admit that this was his position. Yet this man, with a front of triple brass, with a sanctimonious seeming which he endeavors to use as a cloak for the most miserable subterfuges and shameless hypocrisy, stands up before an Oregon audience in whose ears the echoes of his denunciations of the war policy are still ringing, and declares to them that he and his party did not oppose the prosecution of the war, but supported the measures for the suppression of the rebellion. In such a case as this, it is no time to be choice and select in the use of mild and gentle phrases. He claims to be a moral man and Christian gentleman. Whether this character can be consistent with such shameless effrontery, with such calculating hypocrisy, with such deliberate mendacity, is a question which honest men will have no difficulty in settling for themselves. This man is on the record as an opponent of the war from first to last, and he is now traveling over the State endeavoring to [illegible] at the infamy of his party, but in reality proclaiming its infidelity to the country and convincing every honest man of both parties that he is a consummate hypocrite and unscrupulous falsifier. Not only, he declares, did his party support the war, but every Democratic Governor aided the Government in putting down the rebellion. "There is a written record on this subject which is of interest just now. We shall see how Democratic Governors aided in suppressing the rebellion."

When the first call for troops was issued, Beriah Magoffin, the Democratic Governor of Kentucky, responded in these words:

> FRANKFORT, April 16, 1861.
> Hon. SIMON CAMERON, Secretary of War: Your dispatch is received. In answer I say emphatically that Kentucky will furnish no troops for the wicked purpose of subduing her sister Southern States.

Claib Jackson, the Democratic Governor of Missouri, responded as follows:

> Not one man will the State of Missouri furnish to carry on so unholy a crusade.

These responses were from Governors of States which never seceded. The answers returned by the Governors of Virginia, of Tennessee, of Arkansas, were precisely similar. These Governors were all undoubted Democrats. Did Rev. Joseph Smith tell the truth when he said that all the Democratic Governors took sides against the rebellion and aided in suppressing it? But to get this matter nearer home, let us inquire about the action of the Democratic Governor of Oregon.

At the beginning of the rebellion John Whiteaker, then and now an undoubted Democrat, was Governor of this State. In his message to the Legislature, in 1862, he took occasion to discuss this question. He said:

> The bitter fruits of sectionalism and fanaticism are now upon us. But few persons will contend that the war has or was ever intended to restore the Union. On a former occasion I said I had no hope which would survive the downfall of this Government, and I have seen nothing to encourage such a hope after such a consummation; but I at the same time expressed a fear of such a fatal result, if the war policy should be adopted by the General Government. I have seen nothing since to quiet such fears, but much to justify them. I and others of my political views have been charged with opposing the Government. * * * But where the wisdom of the policy adopted by that party is doubted, nay where it has proved to be fatal to every interest of the country, why should citizens be censured for [illegible] or criticising, or even offering a stern opposition to it? My opposition has been caused by a firm conviction that a Government formed like ours by mutual consent, must be held together by the same means. Where the sword has hewn out and established a Government for itself, the sword may very properly be evoked in support of that Government; but it is contrary to all reason to apply such a remedy in a Government like ours.

Now we beg to inquire of Mr Smith, the candid and truthful, if this looks like every Democratic Governor supporting the war for the suppression of the rebellion? And also if he thinks that the people of Oregon can consistently with their interests and their self-respect elect so brazen a falsifier as himself to represent them in the Congress of the United States?

In 1862, when Mr Smith delivered the speech at Salem to which we have already alluded, he was met by E. L. Applegate, who asked him to state publicly whether he endorsed the speech delivered in the Senate on the 2d of March 1861 by Jo. Lane. Smith answered that he did. As that speech is a highly interesting document at a time like this, we transcribe portions of it for the double purpose of showing the position which the Democratic party occupied at that time and of bringing again into public notice the doctrines which Mr. Smith specially endorsed and approved while the rebellion was raging, which he says his party aided to suppress. Mr Lane said:

> Mr President, in the remarks I made [illegible] in December last I took the ground that a State may rightfully secede from the Union. If the people of a State, believing themselves oppressed, undertake to establish a government independent of that to which they formerly owed allegiance, and the [illegible] with the movement, and employs force to prevent [illegible] consummation, no one who acknowledges the great truth that the basis of all free government is the consent of the governed, will deny that such interference is usurpation and tyranny. Sir, if there is, as I contend, the right of secession, then whenever a State exercises that right this Government has no laws in that State to execute, nor has it any property in such State that can be protected by the power of this Government.

Senator Baker, noble patriot, [illegible] that he was [illegible] told Lane that the people of Oregon would [illegible] sustain this treasonable doctrine. In reply Lane said:

> I know the people of Oregon. I am [illegible]

Lane made one mistake. He knew well such men as J. S. Smith and [illegible] Whiteaker—knew that they would be on the side of secession, but he did not know the people of Oregon. In the same speech he proceeded to argue that the doctrine he was contending for was true Democracy:

> I think, for the sake of consistency, I shall [illegible] Democrat [illegible] bound to respect the declared will of the sovereign State which [illegible] to [illegible] from the Union and established a separate and independent government.

He then proceeded to quote the Resolutions of '98 to establish his position. These Resolutions are the time-honored principles which [illegible] in the platforms adopted by the [illegible] Democratic State Convention. No organ or journal of that party [illegible] has ever denounced this speech [illegible] immediately [illegible] nor any one of them dares to do it. The position of Lane was the position of the entire Democratic party. These were the doctrines which J. S. Smith publicly approved in a speech at Salem in May 1862. They were the doctrines of James Buchanan, President of the United States, and John Whiteaker, Governor of Oregon. Non-coercion was the fundamental doctrine of all the party platforms. We quote as a sample, from that adopted by the Democratic party in Connecticut:

> Resolved, That the [illegible] applied to the seceding States, which are [illegible] by the leaders of the Northern sect [illegible] utterly at war with the exercise of [illegible] and the principles of the [illegible] of the United States [illegible] strongly re[illegible] every [illegible]

In this collection of gems, we place the first resolution of the platform adopted by the California Democratic Convention in 1861:

> Resolved, That we are opposed to the [illegible] coercion by the General Government against the seceded States for the purpose of compelling obedience and submission to the Federal authority.

Men of Oregon! this is the record of the party which now asks for your support. This is the record of a candidate who presents himself for your suffrages. Half the people of Oregon have heard J. S. Smith denounce the war for the suppression of the rebellion, have heard him declare it unconstitutional and wrong, have heard him demand that it should stop even at the time when the rebel cause was tottering to its fall, and they know that when he says he and his party did not try to thwart the Government in that crisis, he states a thing which he knows to be notoriously untrue. We have given a small part of the record which he and his party have made, and we call upon Union men, at every point in the State where he has the assurance to make the assertions which he made here, to cram the proof of his falsehood down his throat. Let him stick to the truth if he wants respectful treatment from the Union press and speakers of Oregon.

GIVE THE CONFEDERATES A CHANCE.—A city paper is indignant because such "sectional songs as Marching Through Georgia, etc. are sometimes sung in the public schools, and suggests that Dixie be taught as a substitute "to the children of those who admire such composition." Happy idea! "Don't irritate the South! Don't provoke the President!" We suggest that in pursuance of this idea, all patriotic songs and speeches be expunged from our school books. Or if they are to continue, let Confederate songs and speeches be inserted in conjunction with them for the children of those "who admire such composition." Let the thing at least be strictly impartial. Give the Confederates a chance. If our Declaration of Independence is printed in a school book, let us have the Confederate Declaration along with it in parallel columns. If extracts from Webster's great speeches in behalf of our nationality be introduced, let us also have extracts from the nullifying speeches of South Carolina politicians and the "corner stone" speech of "Vice President Stephens." Let us have the New Confederate Reader, the Illustrated Confederate Geography and General Hill's Confederate Arithmetic to keep company in our schools with the numerous series of National Text Books now in use. Let Pollard's Lost Cause and other historical works of a similar kind be taught to the children of those "who admire such composition." Away with all narrow sectional ideas! If the flag of our nationality is ever raised over our school houses let the Confederate banner be upreared with it. Or if Dixie cannot be sung or the Confederate flag raised, let the national banner also be banished and our national airs forever suppressed. Are we to be so narrow minded as to deny the Confederates a fair chance? Away with this evil of sectionalism!

The Copperhead Rebel Programme

It is a well known fact that the principal object of the Executive of this nation and of the Democratic party two years ago was to secure the election of a sufficient number of members in the North holding kindred views with the Southern rebels, so that when united with those elected from the South they would form a majority of the House of Representatives, and on the first day of the present Fortieth Congress they were expected to convene in that hall with their certificates of election in their pockets, when each man would be the peer of his neighbor, and they being in the majority, would organize that body, communicate with the President, secure his recognition and then compel the Senate to receive their colleagues or block the wheels of the national Government. J. S. Smith wants to go to Congress from Oregon to play a part in a new programme of this kind to give the rebels the control of the national legislature.

The Union candidates of Polk county have made appointments for the canvass. They will address their fellow citizens at Bridgeport on Monday 18th, at Luckiamute, 19th, Buena Vista 20th, at Monmouth 21st, at Eola, 22d, at La Creole 23d, at Douglas (Stone's school house), 25th, at Jackson (Red Prairie school house) 26th, at Salt Lake 27th, at Bethel 28th, at Dallas 29th. Speaking will commence each day at 10 o'clock A. M. On Saturday May 29th there will be a grand rally at Dallas and big dinner in honor of the soldiers who have served in the armies of the United States.

The La Crosse Democrat complains that "right under the eyes of Wall street, amidst the jingle of the money bags and the rustling of the bonds, will the National Democratic Convention be held. All the wonderful power of gold and greenbacks will be brought to bear upon the delegates to control their action." Yes, and the gold and greenbacks will buy up the Convention and the Pendleton policy will be stifled before it is born.

Our President is not a man to win esteem on intimate acquaintance, and to the London Spectator at least distance lends no enchantment. It closes an able editorial thus: "We can only lay down his message with a regret that the United States at the close of a great war should be ruled by a man who does not know or will not acknowledge for what the war was fought."

It is said that the Copperheads have sent to California for a lot of hideous wood cuts on which to print caricatures of the "nigger," etc., which they hope to use here as electioneering documents. They expect in this way to appeal powerfully to the imagination of those Democratic voters who can't read, and who are so "low down" as to be in mortal fear of "negro equality."

A private letter from Salem informs us that Logan stock in Marion is at a premium. He will come nearer polling the Union vote of this county than Smith will the Democratic.

The Washington S[illegible] states that Dr Ball, a full blooded negro, spoke to a crowded meeting of Democrats in Lebanon, N. H., recently. He [illegible] a Democratic newspaper.

A [illegible] from Willow Creek published in the Walla Walla Statesman says that a majority of the people in that District are from Walla Walla.

[illegible] ATTORNEY GENERAL BLACK.—We quote from the opinion of Attorney General Black upon the powers of the President: "[illegible] of Executive Magistrate of the Union is [illegible] the solemn duty of seeing the laws faithfully executed. But his power must be used only in the manner prescribed by the legislative department. He cannot accomplish a legal purpose by illegal means, or break the laws himself to prevent them from being violated by others. The Acts of Congress sometimes give the President broad discretion in the use of the means by which they are to be executed, and sometimes limit his power so that he can exercise it only in a certain prescribed manner. Where the law directs a thing to be done without saying how, that implies the power to use such means as may be necessary and proper to accomplish the end of the Legislature. But where the mode of performing a duty is pointed out by statute, that is the exclusive mode, and no other can be followed. The United States has no common law to fall back upon when the written law is defective. If the Act of Congress declares that a certain thing shall be done by a particular officer it cannot be done by a different officer. The agency which the law furnishes for its own execution must be used to the exclusion of all others."

If J. Black as attorney for A. Johnson can manage to controvert the above opinion of J. Black, Attorney General, he will perform a feat which will make him worthy to stand beside the great apostate whom he must take for his example.

A good chance is opened to an enterprising young man at Shawan. [illegible] The king of the Gypsies encamped at that place offers his beautiful daughter and ten thousand dollars to a nice young man possessing the same amount of cash.

John Nines, a discharged soldier of Co. A, 1st Oregon Infantry, committed suicide near Wilbur, Douglas county, on the 30th ult., by shooting himself through the head with an army musket. He had previously shown evidences of insanity. He was about forty years of age.

California will elect Congressmen this fall, the time of holding these elections having been changed at the late session of the Legislature.

The San Francisco Times says the importation of foreign sugar at that port in 1867 amounted to 37,000,000 pounds.

NEW STORE—NEW GOODS.—The undersigned would respectfully call the attention of the ladies of Portland to their new and complete stock of goods, selected with special reference to the Portland trade. Our motto is one price, and no goods misrepresented to effect sales.
CLARKE, HENDERSON & COOK.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF IDAHO—Boise City, I. T.—Organized March 11th 1867 (with circulation) under Act of Congress approved June 3d 1864. Authorized capital $500,000. Paid up capital $100,000. B. M. DuRell, President. C. W. Moore, Cashier. Collections of Notes and Accounts in all the principal places of Idaho Territory promptly attended to. Exchange for Coin or Currency on this Bank can be purchased of Ladd & Tilton, Portland, Oregon.

THE STEAMER JOHN L. STEPHENS not last, but has arrived at Portland and brought to KOHN & FISHEL the largest and best assortment of Gentlemen's Spring and Summer Suits, the latest style, and of the best material that has been offered in this city for years. The Ladies have not been forgotten. They will find by an inspection of the stock just arrived that their wants have been anticipated by a selection of dry goods, the equal of which is not often presented here.

Sheriff's Sale
BY virtue of an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Multnomah County, to me directed, in favor of F. Martin & Co., and against F. A. Clark, for the sum of $112.50 and interests and costs, I have this 8th day of April 1868, levied the same on that certain piece or parcel of land lying and being in said State and County, known and described as Lots 4 and 5 of Block 104 of the town of East Portland. And on Wednesday, the 6th day of May, 1868, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., in front of the Court House door in said State and County, I will sell all the defendant's interest of, in and to the said premises, to the highest bidder therefor.

SHIP BUILDING AT COOS BAY.—A business man of Empire City closes with the following paragraph: There are now in port loaded and loading with lumber for San Francisco three barks five schooners There are two schooners being built here Business is good will be better this year than ever before Concerning the timber and coal of Coos Bay the following extract from a letter Salem Unionist makes some interesting statements: "It is surprising to see such excellent and immense amount of cedar and such timber without any effort being made to bring it to market where that kind of timber brings such exorbitant prices. Since the close of Port Orford mill the cedar trade has been in the hands of one man Mechanics in San Francisco using cedar get it from the States because they are not aware that it can be had on this coast Why don't some enterprising persons with means enough establish themselves here? Loggers would make good wages to furnish a mill with cedar logs at $10 a thousand And such logs could be had for the price of taking them, to save farmers the trouble of burning them The entrance to the river is so marked that vessels can sail in and out, with a north west wind The bar is very narrow and has 7 feet of water at the lowest tides Coal and iron has been discovered on Johnson creek and vicinity ten years ago by prospectors But to make a road there at the present time, would be very expensive A few months ago coal was discovered only several yards from the banks of the (tide water) river This coal is of the same quality as the Coos Bay coal which is much inferior to the coal found in Johnson's mines Copper and cinnabar was found a few years ago but for the want of experienced prospectors no leads were struck Quartz leads were diligently looked for for several years in John Day, Sixes, Salmon gulch and Coquille but without avail Last summer Mr Sweat, from the Coquille found a lode containing 50 per cent gold, which is the richest ever found in those diggings Mr Loce's new steam tug has made a trial trip up Coos Bay and Isthmus slough She is intended for towing lighters on Coos Bay Mr A Simpson is laying the keel for a large vessel to be built for San Francisco.

NINE YEARS IN THE WEST.—Dr Robt Newell, now in this city en route to Washington, left Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1829 and went to the Rocky Mountains. He roved about till 1836 when he made a visit to the States of St Louis and Cincinnati to his old home in Ohio. He stayed there but a short time the attractions of a wild life proving stronger than those of civilization. In 1836, we think he came westward and made a camp in Oregon, and since that time he has never been out of Oregon, Idaho or Washington Territory except a trip to the mines of California in 1849-50 We suppose that he has never yet seen a live railroad, except that of the O S N Co on the Columbia river His visit to the States after an absence of nearly forty years will be the great event of his life

HIGH WIND.—During the greater part of yesterday, the wind blew rather roughly from the south, endangering the safety of signs, top walls unfinished houses etc In one place we noticed a sign somewhat the worse for a blow. In another a lot of bricks on the sidewalk which had been tumbled from a top wall The ferry boat had considerable difficulty in making its regular trips, and frequently had to play "strategy, my boy" in crossing. Quite a number of small boats along the shore were sunk by the waves and some of them were damaged by bumping against piles or upon rocks. An old house belonging to a Mr Patterson, on Fourth, between Mill and Montgomery streets was blown down and made a complete wreck

—Mrs J F Wood announces that her vocal concert will take place on Thursday evening, at Oro Fino Hall Wherever she has sung, she has received very flattering plaudits from her audiences and the paper press. Many years since when she was a child, we often heard her sing, and we have a vivid recollection of the long time ago than when she first charmed round the little musical prodigy—now Mrs. Wood. By those who have recently heard her, she is said to have retained the extraordinary musical powers of her early childhood and no one who hears her once, will fail to hear her at every subsequent opportunity.

OREGON AND CALIFORNIA STAGE LINE.—Since the 1st inst the Oregon and California stages have been changing their arrival time, and between here and Yreka they are running within half a day of the schedule time. As the distance each way in three and a half days. The stages between Portland and Lincoln is now made in one and a half days, and but for the bad roads, to Yreka the trips could be shortened at least one day. Some of Oregon are dry though yet somewhat muddy. The roads beyond Yreka were badly cut up during the winter and have not yet been repaired.

DEVELOPMENT OF EASTERN OREGON.—Of the rapid growth of Eastern Oregon as the result of its rich mineral and agricultural resources, recently brought to notice, and especially of the attractive character of the Willow Creek mines, no better evidence is needed than that the travel thitherward has induced the establishment of a tri-weekly stage line from the Dalles via Canyon City and Willow Creek to Boise City. Messrs Lockwood and Geer's line went into operation yesterday, stages starting from each end of the route. That and other similar enterprises evidently mean "business."

COUNTY COURT—MARQUAM, JUDGE.—The following were transacted in the County Court yesterday:

In the matter of the guardianship of Charles A. and Elizabeth Stone, minor heirs, C. M. Carter, guardian account of guardian approved, and guardian discharged.

Estate of Chas Elwert deceased; final account filed for hearing May 4th 1868

Perry and F Humiston, executors of the estate of W P Olds and R D Jordon; continued until next term

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—The Fifth Concert of the Philharmonic Society will be given on Friday evening April 17th The proceeds to be appropriated for the payment of the Chickering, No 1 Grand Piano which is now on the way from New York. The instrument will be the finest on the coast with one exception. The Society has labored long and arduously for this object, and if the usual aid extended to them by our citizens is given, they will be able to boast of one of the finest instruments in the world

—The schooner J C Champion Wm Webster, arrived at 9 o'clock P. M. Monday from Tillamook. She left the principal part of her cargo—potatoes—at Astoria. She made an extraordinary trip from Tillamook to Astoria, having left the former at 11 o'clock on Friday and arrived at Astoria at 5 P. M. the same day. Her return cargo will consist of general merchandise. It is expected she will sail on Thursday

APPLEGATE'S LECTURE.—A good audience, probably several hundred persons, were in attendance at Oro Fino Hall to hear the lecture of Hon. E L Applegate, on "The Koreish, Mahomed and the Al Koran." He handled in a highly original and able manner his subject, and did himself great credit by his effort, to judge by the attention with which it was received that it was highly appreciated by his audience

ARRIVALS.—The following were the arrivals yesterday: Per steamer Senator from Oregon City 27 passengers, 20 boxes apples 5 bbls tallow, 3 bales skins, 20 cases oil, 133 boxes unspecified and sundries. Per Wenat, 275 bags wheat 84 boxes apples, 211 sacks flour 8 sks dried apples. Per Alert 930 bush. oats, 403 sks feed, 145 boxes apples 6 bales woolen goods, 26 pkgs sundries.

IMPROVEMENTS.—A petition has been circulated, asking the Council to order the improvement of D and E streets in Couch's Addition, by grading and laying cross walks. E street is also in need of improvement and will be included in any provision the Council may make in the matter A bridge is wanted across Tanner creek, the old one being out of repair, and not at all safe

A GROWTH.—We were shown yesterday at J Buchtel's gallery, a queer specimen of fungus exhumed from the ruins of the late fire by Mr O Hara It is indescribable except that it looks like a horrid jointed animal with two bodies It grew with a sort of toad-stool foot attached to an old jaw bone buried just under the surface of the ground

BOATING SEASON.—We learn that there will doubtless be a lively time among the boating fraternity in the coming season There are several new boats in course of construction, and most of those in use last season are being repaired and refitted There are some indications that several boat clubs may be organized when the sailing season shall be well opened

WEATHER.—Up to yesterday morning the weather has been for a considerable time warm and pleasant. Yesterday, however, we had variable weather—high wind, rain and sunshine mixed in about equal proportions. Persons lately from San Francisco represent the weather here as in most agreeable contrast with that of the Bay

IN BLOOM.—In all the gardens of our city peach trees are in bloom, shrubs of shrubs and a great variety of plants are in bloom— and everything betokens that spring has fully opened. We notice that some of the seed and shrub dealers have boxes with nice large tomato plants, cucumbers and other vegetables growing

—MEETING AT EAST PORTLAND.—At the annual school meeting at East Portland held Monday evening R. H. Lane and Wm Dalton were elected directors It was resolved to levy a tax of four mills on the dollar to build a new school house and to defray other expenses

THE DRY WEATHER.—We learn that the effect of the dry weather has been such on all the hill lands south of here, as to prevent the continuance of cropping—the farmers being unable to plow their lands. A few good heavy April showers would be most welcome

FIRE DRILL.—Multnomah and Protection fire companies had their steam engines out last evening for drill throwing water from the junction of Washington and First and the other from the junction of Alder and First.

STEAMER PURCHASED.—We learn that Mr. Jacob Kamm of this city has purchased the steamer C. N. Wright and is having her fitted up at San Francisco for service but upon what trade we did not learn.

TELEGRAPH.—The Captain of the Crosby reports that when he left Victoria two vessels were loading for New York with the wire shipped out for the Russian telegraph line.

SENT TO THE HOSPITAL.—During the present month John McElhan, John Meacham and Alexander Nichols have been sent to the county hospital

HALF HOLIDAY.—The wind was so high yesterday afternoon that the tide ran in causing the new steam saw mill at North Portland were obliged to knock off. It is expected it at the flume will be up by the end of next week.

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 3.—At the annual school meeting of District No. 3 East Street was held yesterday and a tax of per cent was levied for school purposes.

TO THE PUBLIC

The committee appointed at the Portland Hall ... to distribute the proceeds of the concert given by the benevolent for the benefit of the poor of this city having expended the full amount placed in their hands desire to render an account of their stewardship and therefore respectfully submit the following report

The amount realized from the concert was four hundred and fifty dollars ($450) which was deposited for the benefit of the poor. The interest realized thereon amounted to dollars making the aggregate sum at the disposal of the committee four hundred and sixty two dollars $4

The amount has been disbursed through the hands of members of the committee for the relief of the sick and indigent during the past winter and has been the means of relieving much distress which could not otherwise be relieved. Every application—with two exceptions and they were promptly met—has been favorably considered and the committee feel well satisfied that the distribution of this fund has not only relieved but has prevented much distress during the severity of the past season.

Having expended the fund entrusted to our care to the best of our judgment the committee desire to thank the citizens of Portland for the generous donation on behalf of those whom misfortune has rendered them the recipients of their charity

NEW PLUMBING AND GAS FITTING ESTABLISHMENT.—Mr E Milwain successor of Milwain & J yet advertises this morning his extensive stock of goods As his advertisement indicates he has a more extensive establishment at his premises prepared to sell and to make to order almost any possible article in the hardware plumbing and gas fitting line Call at his place at No 95 Front street or 96 First street

There is but one good wife in this town I said a clergyman in the course of his sermon—the congregation looked expectant—and every married man thinks he's got her, added the minister

DR. GLISAN regrets that he cannot accept the position of School Director so kindly proffered him by the School meeting of Monday evening

HATS. MORE HATS.—Meussdorffer the King of all the hatters received by the steamer John L Stephens another large assortment of beautiful styles of hats for the spring of 1868. A casual glance of all the styles would fill too much room and we can only advise everybody to go and see them Seeing is believing and believing is buying Portland has never before had such a variety of tasteful styles of hats and caps as may now be found at Meussdorffer's. Hereafter he will receive large assortments by every steamer and it will be impossible for any man to go there without finding something to suit him, exactly

TAILORS WANTED.—Six A 1 Coat Pants and Vest Makers can find ready employment by calling on W King Superintendent of the tailoring department at Darman Bros corner Front and Morrison streets. None but the best workmen need apply as the highest prices are paid

LADIES.—Please call in to lay and examine the new stock of goods just received at Mrs Levy's, consisting of the finest spring styles of fancy goods all the latest and most fashionable styles of trimmings, &c

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS!
A Pure and Powerful Tonic,
Corrective and Alterative, of wonderful efficacy in Diseases of the STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS.
PROTECTIVE PROPERTIES.

Prevents Fever and Ague and Billious Remittent Fevers; Fortifies the System against Miasma and the evil effects of unwholesome water; Invigorates the organs of digestion and the bowels

Steadies the Nerves and tends to Prolong Life

REMEDIAL PROPERTIES.

Cures Dyspepsia Liver Complaint, Sick and Nervous Headache General Debility Nervousness Depression of Spirits Constipation Colic Intermittent Fevers, Sea Sickness Cramps and Spasms and all complaints of either sex arising from Bodily Weakness, whether inherent in the system or PRODUCED BY SPECIAL CAUSES

NOTHING THAT IS NOT WHOLESOME, GENIAL and restorative in its nature, enters into the composition of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind; no deadly botanical element no fiery excitant but is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants

The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this Tonic, and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of Indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient as well as upon the liver it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs

Persons of feeble habit liable to Nervous Attacks Lowness of Spirits and Fits of Languor find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters The testimony on this point is conclusive, and from both sexes.

As a Genuine Tonic HOSTETTER'S BITTERS produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated In cases of Constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay and Debility and Decrepitude arising from old age it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant When the powers of nature are relaxed it operates to re-enforce and re-establish them

Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acrid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.

The undersigned who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commends here and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price excites the cupidity of some manufacturers and every day he sees increasing the number of those who by counterfeit or imitation of his mark seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned and placed on their guard against this practice

Ghost-Talk.

The persuasion that the spirits of the departed occasionally revisit the scene of their earthly existence is too general to render necessary any excuse for an occasional return to the subject whenever the occurrence of some incident in itself [illegible] features or the starting of new theories of explanation give promise of any profitable result. The object of this paper is not to advocate the doctrine that the revisitings just alluded to are permitted, but simply to narrate two or three additions to ghostly literature.

Very few years have passed since the occurrence in a busy thoroughfare in busy London of an incident which it will be better to give in the words of the narrator.

It was a wild, stormy night in the spring of 1857 that I was sitting before the fire at my lodgings in ——— street, with an open book on my knee. The fire had burned very low, and I had not replenished it, for the weather, stormy as it was, was warm, and one of the windows had remained since dinner, partially unclosed.

"My sitting room was on the third floor—one of those queer old rooms that seem expressly adapted to the occupancy of sprites and bogies. The walls were panneled to the height of six feet from the floor, and the cornices covered with fantastic mouldings. Heavy articles of furniture, including a mighty high backed chair disposed in different parts of the room, were lighted up occasionally by the flickering gaseous flame in the grate, which soon abandoned them to still deeper and deeper darkness as its aliment grew less.

In the center of the apartment there stood a large round table. Between this and the fire I sat, as I have mentioned, with a volume on my knee. It was upon the subject of the law of evidence, and, to say truth, showed small tokens of frequent consultation. I had lapsed into meditation, and thence into a state of dreamy semi consciousness, when my attention was attracted by a movement of the door of which, from my position, I commanded a view. I saw it, through my half closed eyes, open slowly and noiselessly, and the next moment a female figure entered the room.

It was not a very alarming apparition, being nothing more than an extremely pretty woman of about 25, with light brown hair, gracefully arranged under a bonnet of the ordinary fashion of the day. Her features were perfectly strange to me. They were regular, and she would have been a very attractive person but from the fact that her eyes had a very strange unearthly expression—a look as of one who had gazed on things immortal—perhaps, to speak more familiarly, a look, such as medical science has described as appearing in the eyes of criminals who have been, by some strange accident, torn from the jaws of death after the hangman had, to all appearance, faithfully performed his ghastly office. I myself have seen similar expression in the faces of men who have [illegible] some awful peril, and have been by some [illegible] circumstance, rescued from destruction when the real bitterness of death had passed.

"So much was I fascinated by that peculiar glance, that I sat, like one entranced, without power of movement, my heart alone reminding me, by its accelerated beat, that I lived, and was cognizant of what was presented to my eyes.

"My mysterious visitor advanced to the table without taking the least notice of me, and removing her bonnet with an easy, natural manner of one coming home from a walk, laid it on the table. She then took from her pocket a little book bound in crimson velvet, and drawing a chair to the fire, seemed to become absorbed in its perusal. In sitting down she turned her side to me, and a gleam from the dying fire revealed to me a gaping wound in the right temple, such as might have been caused by a fall against some sharp and hard substance.

"It was now that the conviction rushed upon me that my silent visitor was not of this world yet I do not know that I experienced any feeling akin to consternation. Curiosity and interest, at all events, were predominant; and I watched her every movement with almost breathless attention.

"After I know not what time—probably some ten minutes passed in this manner, the girl seemed to become restless and uneasy. She glanced from her book to the door—to the window—to the mantel shelf (as though a clock stood there)—tried to resume her book, but apparently failed, and, at length, laying it down, murmured to herself: 'What in the world can detain him? It is long past his time.'

"She remained, as it were, buried in thought for a few moments; then, with an audible sigh, resumed her reading. It did not answer, however. It was manifest that she could not control some [illegible] thought, and now, as if taking some sudden resolution, she replaced the volume in her pocket, rose, put on her bonnet, and moved towards the door. Suddenly she paused, turned, approached the window, and seeming to raise it, gazed steadfastly out.

"The next moment she gave a violent start, and appeared to gasp for breath, her clasped hands and straining eyeballs indicated that some terrible object had met her view. Then with one loud, heart-broken cry, she threw her arms wildly above her head, and cast herself from the window!

"That cry [illegible] to arouse me from my trance-like [illegible]. I was on my feet in a second, and rushed to the window. Had my senses deceived me? [illegible], for it was barely open—as I had left it. I [illegible] up the sash, and leaned forth. In the street all was as usual. The stream of human life passed uninterruptedly on. A [illegible] glanced stolidly up at my opening window and sauntered by. Two men were [illegible] smoking at a window fronting mine. It was plain they had heard or seen nothing amiss. Much marveling, I returned to my chair and [illegible] enough of the law of evidence found its way, that evening, into my disturbed brain.

"The [illegible] day I took an opportunity of speaking confidentially to my landlady. Had anything of an unusual nature been seen in the house before? The worthy woman hesitated. Why did I ask? I told her all; and, moved by a sudden impulse, inquired if any calamity had occurred in those apartments which might, to some minds, account for the strange appearance I had witnessed.

"With a little pressing, the woman informed me that, just a year before, a tragical incident had occurred in those apartments. A young couple had occupied the rooms on the third floor. The lady was very pretty, with light brown hair, and was tenderly attached to her young mate, who was a clerk in some one of the large city offices.

"One day she returned from her walk as usual, and, fearing she was late, ran hastily up, half expecting to find her husband awaiting her. He had not arrived, however, and having thrown aside her [illegible], and set the room in order, she sat down [illegible] the fire, and strove to forget her impatience in the perusal of a book which George had that day given her. Dinner time came, and tea-time, but no George. Dreading she knew not what, the poor girl at last ran to the window, determined to keep watch until he arrived. For some time she had been noticed leaning motionless over the window-sill. But a new object attracted the attention of those who watched her. A stretcher was borne up the street, upon which lay a dead, distorted corpse. It was the young husband. He had fallen from a steamer's deck, and been crushed and drowned between the boat and pier. As they halted at the door which he had quit in health and mirth that morning, a piercing shriek alarmed the whole street. The young widow had flung herself from the window. Her head struck the curb stone. She was killed instantly."

A ghostly appearance under similar conditions, was witnessed by the aunt of a lady now resident in London, who was at the time on a visit to Canada. She was about 15, healthy in body and mind, and gifted with a remarkable degree of intelligence. While sitting in broad day, beneath a cherry tree whose branches overhung a paling at right angles to her seat, she saw a young girl come tripping along the paling. In wondering how she was enabled to keep her footing, the lady noticed that her tiny feet were encased in high heeled red morocco slippers. Her dress was of old fashion, consisting partly of the then obsolete negligée and a long blue scarf. Arrived beneath the tree, the visionary figure unwound the scarf, secured one end to an overhanging bough, made a loop at the other, and, slipping it over her head leaping from the paling. On witnessing this the young seer fainted away.

Instances of the warning dream involving minute particulars, possess a certain interest. Here is a recent example.

The father of a friend of the writer an old Peninsular officer—he commanded his regiment at Waterloo—was residing not long since, about 12 miles from London, in a direction where, strange to say, no railway passed sufficiently near to accelerate the journey to town. One morning the Colonel found, among the letters awaiting him on the breakfast-table, an application from a friend of his, who was engaged in a business of a fluctuating and speculative character, earnestly requesting the loan of £100. The writer resided in Wimpole street, where the Colonel had often partaken of his hospitality. Unwilling to refuse such an an appeal, he instantly transmitted by post a check for the required amount.

On the succeeding night, his eldest daughter dreamed that the applicant had sustained a reverse of so crippling a nature, that insolvency was inevitable, and her father's money was consequently lost. So deep was the impression thus unexpectedly suggested to her mind, that the young lady left her bed, and going straight to her mother's room, communicated the dream. Her sleepy parents merely remonstrated, and sent her away. But the second time came back the disturbing dream, and with an angry force that sent her a second time to her mother's bedside. Once more, but with soothing and gentleness—Miss Margaret was dismissed to her repose. However, about four in the morning, the dream recurred for the third time, and now the young lady fairly got up dressed herself, and appealed to her father, declaring that she would not attempt to sleep again until the truth of what she now believed to be a warning should be investigated. The Colonel's interest and curiosity were aroused. He ordered his carriage at half past six, and taking his daughter with him, started for Wimpole street.

The travelers knew the habits of their friend. He never quitted his bedroom till 9 o'clock, and when, a little before that hour, they were ushered into his breakfast parlor, the morning's letters lay beside his plate. Among them the Colonel recognised his own, which, under the peculiar circumstances and the pressing instances of his daughter, the gallant officer felt justified in abstracting and placing in his pocket. Upon the appearance of the master of the house, the visitor explained, and with perfect truth, that he had come thus early to town purposely to express his very sincere regret that circumstances equally uncontrollable and unforeseen, rendered it impossible for him to comply with his request for a loan.

How these excuses were received, history does not state. One thing, however, is beyond all question, the gentleman's name appeared in the next Gazette, and that owing to liabilities in regard to which the poor Colonel's loan would have been as a drop in the well! Who will deny that there was a dream worth a hundred pounds?

It may be satisfactory to the readers of unexplained marvels to learn that the number of houses wanting flesh and blood tenants, because they are supposed to be pre occupied by beings of a different mould, by no means diminishes. There is a spot—a very pretty spot, too—and highly accessible to travelers, in which there is a very colony of such dwellings, (to use the language of an inhabitant of the district, a "perfect nest of ghosts";) albeit its name, to satisfy editorial scruples, must be suppressed. It might also have been discovered with consummate ease, in the page of Bradshaw. A brief residence in that favored precinct would satisfy the most incredulous that there are mysteries which baffle their philosophy. There is another spot—let us hope that we are successfully working to windward of the law of defamation, in mentioning that it is not far from the city of Bath—which boasts of two handsome country seats, each possessed of a traditionary ghost. The following, relating to one of these houses, which we shall designate Barton Hall, is perfectly true, and occurred but a short time since, on the occasion of the visit of two young ladies, sisters, from whom the narrative is derived. They had retired to the chamber occupied by both, and the older sister was already in bed. The younger sister was kneeling before the fire. The door opened softly, and a woman, entering, crossed the apartment, and bent down before a chest of drawers, as if intending to open the lower one. Thinking it was one of the maids, the young lady who was in bed accosted her. "Is that you, Mary? What are you looking for there?"

Her sister, who was by the fire, had risen to her feet, and turned towards the woman. In the act, she uttered a loud shriek, and staggering back, fell half fainting, on the bed. The other sprang up, and followed the intruder, who seemed to retreat quickly into an adjoining dressing room. The young lady entered. It was empty.

Returning to her sister, the latter, who had recovered from her consternation, explained the cause of her outcry. The woman in turning to her displayed a human countenance, but devoid of eyes.

The neighboring residence, Jervis House, is a building some two centuries old, and stands in rather extensive grounds, having, moreover, a large ornamental lake, in the centre of which is a small island without trees. A gentleman who was on a visit for the first time at Jervis House, a year or two ago, observed to his host at breakfast: "I see there is no bridge communication with your little island."

"None."

"I thought you told me you had at present no boat on the lake?"

"Nor have I," replied his friend. "Why?"

"How, then, do ladies effect the passage?"

The host hesitated.

"Ladies!" he repeated. "Do you mean—"

"I mean, my good friend, that I noticed a lady walking on the island, this morning, so early that I wondered at her fancy. She passed entirely round, and crossed it twice, so that I could not possibly be mistaken."

"You have seen the Jervis ghost," said his friend, curtly. And the subject was dismissed.

The following has been authenticated: Mr L. L., one of the best and boldest members of the famous Midlandshire hunt, was killed by his horse falling with him at a leap. He left a widow and one daughter, a very lovely girl. Mr. L's estate, however, passed to a male heir—a distant cousin—and Mrs. L and her daughter determined to take up their abode on the Continent. After a short sojourn in Paris, they proceeded to Tours, traveling from preference by the posting road, until, one evening, the picturesque aspect of a little hamlet, overlooked by a fine chateau, induced them to halt there for the night. They were informed by the landlord of the rustic inn, that the gray walled mansion to the south was the property of Monsieur Gaspard, a widower, who desired to sell it, and meanwhile, resided about a league from the house. Next morning, Mrs. L. and her daughter passed some hours exploring the venerable mansion, and roaming in its noble but neglected gardens, until they arrived at the conclusion that nothing could please them better. A proposal was forthwith addressed to the proprietor. No difficulty ensued, and the ladies were quickly installed in their new possession, as well as, it would seem, in the good graces of Monsieur Gaspard himself, for he paid them frequent visits, and speedily established himself on the footing of an intimate friend.

He was a man of more than ordinary talents, having, moreover, the art to turn them to advantage, and it was not long before Monsieur Gaspard became the declared suitor of Ada L.

One peculiarity he possessed, which had soon attracted Miss L.'s notice, a liability to sudden fits of gloom and abstraction, against which he manifestly strove in vain. These, however, it is true, were not of frequent occurrence and, with this single exception, all went merrily as a marriage bell, which, in about a fortnight, was to celebrate the union of the affianced pair. For Monsieur Gaspard was an ardent lover, and gave his mistress no peace until he had secured an early day. One night Ada, fatigued with a walk somewhat longer than usual, withdrew early to her chamber, a lofty, spacious apartment, with furniture of oak and ebony, and having a large old wardrobe directly facing the bed. She was awakened by sounds like the rustling of a silk dress, and, to her amazement, saw a young lady richly attired in the fashion of a past period, cross the room and disappear, as it seemed, in the closet wardrobe.

The vision had passed so suddenly that the young lady had no difficulty in persuading herself that it was nothing more than a dream, or one of those impressions, so real in appearance, that sometimes visit us on the confines of actual sleep. When, however, on the next night, a precisely similar incident occurred, and still more when the third night presented the same image, Miss L.'s alarm and dismay were fully aroused. On this last occasion she had taken her maid to sleep with her, and it was the loud scream of the latter that awakened her, in time to notice the retreating figure.

Cautioning the servant to be silent on the matter, Miss L. communicated the circumstance to her mother. Workmen were sent to examine and remove the wardrobe, when, at the back was found a small door. This, being forced open, revealed a narrow flight of stairs, which conducted the searchers to a little vault like chamber. In one corner lay a heap of moth eaten clothes, and other objects, which nearer scrutiny proved to be the remains of a human being, of which little more than the skeleton was left. A ring and a locket were also found, and these, at the police inquiry which succeeded, tended to the identification of the remains as those of a beautiful girl of the village, who, five years before, had, as it was supposed, quitted her home with a young soldier who was seen in the neighborhood.

Monsieur Gaspard was placed under surveillance, but even this cautious step sufficed. His conscience had long tormented him. He acknowledged that he had seduced and murdered the girl but under what precise circumstances was never revealed, except to his confessor. He was found guilty, but not executed—passing the remainder of his miserable life in the condition, worse than death, of a prisoner in the galleys, without hope of pardon.—All the Year Round.

REVIVAL OF THE INCAS OF PERU.—The distinguished traveler and scholar, E. G. Squier, made rather a striking statement the other night in his statement on Peru, when he gave his opinion that the day is not far distant when the Indians in the interior of Peru will assert and maintain their independence, and in some form restore, as they several times have very nearly succeeded in doing, the empire of the Incas, under one of the descendants of those wise and powerful sovereigns. Mr Squier expressed his idea that this restoration would [illegible] be a misfortune either to Peru or the world. This may seem a very philosophical view of the case, but would the Spanish inhabitants of the adjoining countries permit such a consummation?

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD!

Running West from Omaha

ACROSS THE CONTINENT,

ARE NOW COMPLETED.

THIS BRINGS THE LINE TO THE EASTERN BASE of the Rocky Mountains, and it is expected that the track will be laid thirty miles further, to Evans Pass, the highest point on the road, by January. The maximum grade from the foot of the mountains to the summit is but eighty feet to the mile, while that of many eastern roads is over one hundred. Work in the rock-cuttings on the western slope will continue through the winter, and there is now no reason to doubt that the entire grand line to the Pacific will be open for business in 1870.

The means provided for the construction of this Great National Work are ample. The United States grants its Six Per Cent Bonds at the rate of from $16 000 to $48,000 per mile, for which it takes a second lien as security, and receives payment to a large if not to the full extent of its claim in services. These bonds are issued as each twenty mile section is finished, and after it has been examined by the United States Commissioners and pronounced to be in all respects a first-class road, thoroughly supplied with depots, repair-shops, stations, and all the necessary rolling stock, and other equipments.

The United States also makes a donation of 12,800 acres of land to the mile, which will be a source of large revenue to the Company. Much of this land in the Platte Valley is among the most fertile in the world and other large portions are covered with heavy pine forests and abound in coal of the best quality.

The Company is also authorized to issue its own First Mortgage Bonds to an amount equal to the issue of the Government and no more. Hon E. D. Morgan and Hon Oakes Ames are Trustees for the Bondholders, and deliver the bonds to the Company only as the work progresses, so that they always represent an actual and productive value.

The authorized capital of the Company is One Hundred Million Dollars, of which over five millions have been paid in upon the work already done.

EARNINGS OF THE COMPANY.

At present, the profits of the Company are derived only from its local traffic, but this is already much more than sufficient to pay the interest on all the Bonds the Company can issue, if not another mile were built. It is not doubted that when the road is completed the through traffic of the only line connecting the Atlantic and Pacific States will be large beyond precedent, and, as there will be no competition, it can always be done at profitable rates.

It will be noticed that the Union Pacific Railroad is in fact, a Government Work, built under the supervision of Government officers, and to a large extent with Government money, and that its bonds are issued under Government direction. It is believed that no similar security is so carefully guarded, and certainly no other is based upon a larger or more valuable property. As the Company's are offered for the present AT PAR IN U. S. CURRENCY, they are the cheapest security in the market, being more than 15 per cent lower than U. S. Stocks. They pay

SIX PER CENT. IN GOLD, or over NINE PER CENT. upon the investment. Subscriptions will be received in Portland by and by the Company's advertised Agents throughout the United States. Remittances should be made in drafts or other funds par in New York, and the bonds will be sent free of charge by return express.

A NEW PAMPHLET AND MAP, showing the Progress of the Work, Resources for Construction and Value of Bonds, may be obtained at the Company's Offices or of its advertised Agents, or will be sent free on application.

PATENTS. Attention given to filing Caveats and applications for Letters Patent. A gentleman at Washington D.C., of 20 years experience in this business, is associated with me and gives this branch his sole attention.

BOUNTY.—Act July 28, 1866 soldiers entering the service between April 19, 1861, and July 19, 1864 for two or three years are entitled to bounty. Widows and Heirs of soldiers are entitled. Sailors and Marines who entered after July 1 1864, are entitled to $100 for each year of service. Seamen are entitled to three months pay if they entered the service between Feb. 24, 1864, and July 1, 1864. Colored soldiers are entitled same as white.

PENSION.—Soldiers and Sailors disabled, or who have lost any of their limbs, are entitled to pension. Those who lost limbs are entitled to additional sums from $7 to $17 per month according to condition. Widows are entitled to $2 per month extra for each child under 16 years of age.

COMMUTATION OF TRAVEL.—California and Nevada Volunteers discharged in Arizona, New Mexico or Utah and at points distant from the place of enlistment, are entitled to actual cost of transportation, less the amount paid at the time of discharge.

THREE MONTHS' PAY PROPER.—Volunteer Officers who were in the service March 3 1865, and were honorably discharged after April 9, 1865, are entitled to three months pay proper.

LOST HORSES.—Cavalry Soldiers who entered the service prior to June 20 1864 and owned the horses and equipments they used are entitled to 40 cents per day for the period of service, and to pay for equipments lost and each horse killed in battle or lost without fault of soldier.

COMMUTATION OF RATIONS.—Soldiers, Sailors and Marines who were prisoners of war during the Rebellion are entitled to commutation of rations at cost prices during the period of their imprisonment.

SERVANTS OF ARMY OFFICERS.—The allowance for servants of all officers who were in the service at any time between May 1 1861, and March 3 1865 is equal to the pay of a private soldier during the time for each servant allowed and employed. As only $11 per month was allowed for the intervening ten months instead of $16 authorized, every officer is entitled to $50 additional for each servant so employed.

BOUNTY LAND WARRANTS.—All officers, soldiers sailors marines their widows former widows or children who were actually engaged in battle in any war between 1790 and March 3, 1855 are entitled to a Land Warrant of 160 acres. If they have received less than that amount they are entitled to the balance to make 160 acres.

All communications to be noticed should be addressed as above and contain postage stamps for a reply.

MANUFACTURERS OF

TURBINE WATER WHEEL!

OF WHICH THE ABOVE IS AN ILLUSTRATION, has FOUR SETS OF BUCKETS, AND USES THREE FOURTHS OF THE WATER TWICE.

The old high-priced, unequalled and unrivalled wheel has been PLAYED OUT by a fair working trial made by Mr H Kelly at his saw mill, and the public can see what he says as to the capacity of the two wheels in the following testimonial over his own signature.

MR H W SHIPLEY—Sir. In reply to your inquiry as to how I like you Pacific Turbine Wheel, I have to say that I have used one over shot and three Leffel wheels—10, 13 and 15 inch diameters. When I substituted your 16 inch wheel for the 13 inch Leffell wheel, though unfinished it worked the machinery like a top using 62 ft of water per minute more than the 13 inch Leffell. At your request I subsequently took your wheel out that it might be finished and then I put in a 15 inch Leffel but it gave no better power than yours while it used 62 cubic feet more water, per minute. After some months, I replaced your wheel and am still using it with the most satisfactory results. I have subjected it to some severe tests. For instance, when running the circular saw in a log which squared 17 inches I added the planer with a 9 inch knife, cutting from one eighth to one fourth of an inch depth, without in the least slacking the speed. After thorough tests of both wheels I am satisfied that your wheel with gates one eighth of an inch open gives as much power as the Leffell with gates one third open. At half gate your wheel gives double the power of the Leffel at half gate. At full gate the power of yours exceeds that of the Leffel, by from ten to twelve per cent. At quarter gate, the Leffel holds no comparison with yours at quarter gate.

N. B. Mr Shipley was not present at either of the trials of his wheel, he being sick at the first, and absent from the State at the second trial.

THESE WHEELS, UNEQUALLED AND UNRIVALLED in the United States or the world, have been fully tested in this coast, many being in use at this date, driving all kinds of machinery, Saw Mills, Flour Mills, Quartz Mills, Woolen Factories, &c., &c.

The following is from the Springfield Republic.

Trial of Water Wheels.

Messrs Jonathan Child and John A. McCreight, who are about establishing mills and factories at Harper's Ferry, Va., wished to procure water wheels and desiring to make a choice of Springfield Wheels procured a trial between the Leffel Double Turbine and the Welch and Burns Wheel. The following report of the Committee shows the result of the trial.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct 11 1867.

This is to certify that on the 9th and 10th days of October 1867, I, in company with Mr Staley, Civil Engineer of Mechanicsburg, carefully measured the amount of water used in the test between the 10 inch Leffel Turbine and the 10 inch Welch & Burns Water wheels made by Bechtle, Blakeney & Baker, made at Weimer's mill, near West Milton, Miami Co., O. The contract required the tests to be made with ½ gates and ¾ gates, with the same amount of water for each wheel. The amount of grinding was superintended by Mr Charles Morgan, who will report the results.

The amount of water used in the tests, as measured by myself and Mr Staley, is as follows:

		C ft per min.
At ½ gate the Leffel Wheel used		86 284
	Welch & Burns used	88 224
At ¾ gate the Leffel Wheel used		117.428
	Welch & Burns used	117 528

The grinding was continued for one hour each test.

WILLIAM BROWN,
Civil Engineer.
S. S. STALEY.

Having been chosen by both parties to determine the amount of grain ground by each of the abovementioned wheels, the result was as follows:

The Leffel Wheel at ½ gate ground	258 lbs
The Welch & Burns at ½ gate ground	56½ lbs
The Leffel Wheel at ¾ gate ground	411½ lbs
The Welch & Burns at ¾ gate ground	392 lbs

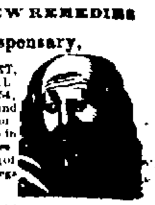
Medical.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr Gibbon's Dispensary,



616 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons both male and female are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life destroying maladies—see that they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of [illegible] charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, feted breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained should apply immediately either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them not delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who with bogus sworn to certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen, and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory, and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it, but you will find their former occupations in it. Look at the Directory for 1862 and 1863. The only way to avoid [illegible] is to make enquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets, for as advertising physicians, in eight cases out of ten, are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patient's letters etc. Dr Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of two executions, to me directed, issued out of the Circuit Court of Multnomah county, State of Oregon, in favor of E. Martin & Co., plaintiffs, and against P. B. Sinnott, I have this second day of April, 1868, levied the same on all the stock and hotel fixtures in the building known as the New Columbian Hotel, on the corner of Front and Morrison streets, in the city of Portland, consisting of one hundred and ten sets of bed room furniture, tables, chairs, parlor sets, cooking range, stoves, a fine selection of pictures and mirrors, also, a lot of saloon fixtures, liquors, counters, bedding, &c., besides a large number of articles too numerous to mention, levied on as the personal property of the said P. B. Sinnott and on Monday, the 13th day of April, A. D. 1868, I will expose the same for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, or so much of said property as will satisfy the above named executions, amounting to the sum of thirty two hundred and sixty (3 260) dollars in U. S. gold coin, together with the accruing costs. Terms of sale: purchasers to pay in gold coin, to be settled for on day of sale. Sale to be held on the corner of Front and Morrison streets, commencing at 9 o'clock A. M. JACOB STITZEL, td Sheriff Multnomah County, Oregon.

LaGrande Gold and Silver Mining Co.

Location of works, Eagle Creek, Union county, Oregon.

Notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of said Company, held on the second day of March, 1868, an assessment of ($1 00) one dollar per share was levied upon the Capital Stock of said Company, payable immediately in U. S. gold coin or its equivalent, to the Secretary at the Office of the Company in La Grande, Union county, Oregon. Any Stock upon which said assessment shall remain unpaid on the 6th day of April 1868, shall be deemed delinquent and will be duly advertised for sale at public auction, and unless payment shall be made before will be sold on Monday the 4th day of May 1868, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Trustees.
mch11dtd A. H. SEELEY, Secretary.
